Boetrn.

To heaven approached a Sufi saint, From groping in the darkness late, And, tapping timidly and faint, Besought admission at God's gate. Said God, "Who seeks to enter here?"

"Tis I, dear Friend," the saint replies And trembled much with hope and fear. "If it be thou, without abidel" Sadly to earth the poor saint turn car the scourging of life's rods; e his heart within him yearned

To mix and lose its love in God's.

He roamed alone through weary years, By cruel men still scorned and mocked Until, from faith's pure fires and tears, Again he rose, and modest knocked. Asked God, "Who now is at the door?" "It is thyself, beloved Lord!" Answered the saint, in doubt no more But clasped and rapt in his reward.
